

HOW TO WRITE A MOTIVATION LETTER LIKE A PRO

Make it clear that you know where and for which job position you are applying.

Your offer has attracted me because you are a prestigious institution with a long standing tradition and a professional level. I would be delighted to participate in your projects that bring joy to the general public and, above all, promote awareness in an important field.

I am hearing about you for the first time, but you look good, I need a job and I do not really care what I will be doing.

Dedicate one paragraph to your education, skills, and experience.

I have been working and educating myself in the field of ... for almost ... years. I try to stay up to date with current creative trends while also striving to be original in my work and develop my own distinct style. During my high school studies, I acquired... My university studies focused more on the world of advertising, marketing, and media graphics. I have learned to communicate with clients and am also involved in some projects of our school agency to further expand my portfolio and experience. Furthermore, I strive to improve in my field and enjoy learning new things.

I have three university degrees, all completed with honors. I have three titles before and after my name. I know and can do everything you can think of. Whatever you say, I know and can do it. You must want me.

Sell yourself. But not cheaply.

I believe that my attention to detail, hardworking nature, and visual sense make me a suitable candidate for the job position you are offering.

I am perfect and humble. I will meet all your expectations. I am simply the ideal candidate, you won't find anyone better.

Be honest.

Remember, less is sometimes more.

Do not write a novel about yourself.

Say goodbye with a wish for a nice day.

Thank you for your attention.

You will thank me later.
